Measures Aimed Directly At Insurance Workers Taken Up On The Floor This Morning.

CAUSES A CONSIDERABLE DEBATE

Child Labor Law As Amended By The Senate Accepted By Assembly--Other Legislative Matters.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., June 24.—In preparation for an impending fight on the important insurance bills, the assembly this morning took a rap at the lobby by adopting a resolution which clearly defines and calls attention to what is meant by "the floor of the assembly" in the assembly rule prohibiting any but certain privileged ones from circulating on the floor of the house. Ledvina opposed the resolution, saying there was no occasion for such a step at this late hour. Of all the lobbyists that have appeared before the legislature, the insurance lobby has been most well behaved of

A FORMER RESIDENT RESCUED LOST BOY

Harold Hanthorn, Proves Himself a Hero at Caldwell, Idaho—What Paper Says.

Harold Hanthorn, a son of O. D. Hanthorn of 106 South Main street, who married Miss Rosella Hurling last winter and moved with his mother and father-in-law and wife to Caldwell, Idaho, was the hero of the sensational rescue of a nineteen-months-old baby boy who had wandered away from home and was lost in the wild lands from Saturday night until Monday noon of last week. Hanthorn has only been a resident of Caldwell for two weeks and the story of his finding the infant is printed below as taken from the Idaho Statesman of Boise: Idaho.

"I know very little about the country, having been here only two weeks, and had very little hope of finding the little tot. Fully 500 persons, many of whom knew every inch of the ground thoroughly, had been searching since early Sunday morning, but I made up my mind to do what I could. When I got out there to the Marsh home, which is 12 miles from Caldwell right toward New Plymouth, I learned that the child strayed away early in the evening, about 6 o'clock, on Saturday. They had found the little one's tracks at a point 4 miles east of there. I rode over to that point. I found the mother at a camp there surrounded by neighbor women. She was nearly distracted. She had given up all hope of finding the child alive and was praying that his body be found unharmed by wild beasts.

"With three or four other searchers I started out on horseback. We found several evidences of where the child had wandered, but only occasional footprints. We had gone about three miles and a half and a little way into a gulch when the others decided there was no use in going further. They said we had gone too far and that we must be on the wrong track. Something seemed to be telling me that we were on the right trail and I concluded to go it alone. They turned back and I rode on a short distance and then got off the horse and walked leading the animal. In a short time I found tiny footprints which gave me hope. The footprints led up the side of the gulch and I proceeded on slowly taking the course I thought the child would be most apt to follow.

"All at once I heard a weak, little childish voice. It said, 'Pony, pretty pony; baby ride pretty pony.' I looked up and around and in a moment discovered the child standing just behind a large sage brush. He had evidently been tottling along and had stopped when he heard my approach. He was holding out his little bruised and bleeding arms to me. I snatched up the child and rushed to the top of the hill and gave the signal that the baby had been found."

Hanthorn said that on his way out of the gulch he was met by several riders who had heard his signal and came on to assist him. One of them had a bottle of milk and when the child was given the liquid food it drank ravenously, all they thought it best to give it. Aside from the fact that the child's face and hands were bruised and scratched badly by the brush, and his features rather pinched and wan, there were no injuries. He did not appear to have been frightened and there were no evidences that he had cried. The child had slept out two nights and in the course of his traveling had walked all of nine and a half miles, most of that distance over very steep hills. He did not appear greatly fatigued but was nearly starved. The child was found at 10:45 o'clock.

PUBLIC SENTIMENT NOW AGAINST JUDGE LOVING

His Murder Of Boy He Supposed Betrayed Daughter, Is No Longer Considered Justifiable Homicide.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Richmond, Va., June 24.—A special term of court convened today at Houston, Halifax county, for the trial of Judge W. G. Loving, charged with the murder of Theodore Estes. It is reported that there is to be an effort made to have the case go over to some time, making the trial for the first part of October. The court has made all preparations for the trial, however, and it is believed that Judge Burksdale will order it to proceed without further delay unless good reasons are given for a postponement. The line of defense is something of a mystery, and not the slightest indication has been given as to what it will be. Since the killing public sentiment in regard to the case has undergone a considerable change. Many persons are now of the belief that the young victim was guilty of no mortal offense. Nevertheless, the so-called unwritten law will in all probability be made the basis for the defense. It is expected that Judge Loving will plead that at the time of the shooting he was honest in his conviction that his daughter had suffered at the hands of Estes.

It will be necessary for Miss Loving to take the stand in such a defense, and the community is on the qui vive to learn how far she will go in her testimony to shield her father. She is depended upon to at least demonstrate that she gave him cause to believe the worst, however unwittingly it was given.

While visiting a friend in the country Miss Loving went buggy-riding with Estes. According to the story now generally believed she became faint and her escort gave her a drink of liquor to revive her. Being unused to liquor, it made her ill. Hearing of her illness, her father hurried at once to the home of her friend, where she was staying, and got a rather incoherent statement from her which led him to believe that young Estes had been guilty of a mortal crime. He went at once to where the young man, unconscious of what was impending, was unloading a freight car. Waving two negro helpers out of the way, Judge Loving shot down the young man and then marched himself off to jail to announce that he had wiped out the stain on his family name.

BRAKEMAN KARN IS STILL UNCONSCIOUS

Was Knocked from Top of Cars and Extent of Injuries Is Not Fully Known.

Brakeman J. E. Karn, whose injury at Crystal Lake, Ill., was noted in Saturday's Gazette, still lies in a semi-comatose condition at the Mercy hospital. He had a bad bruise on his head, the left side of his face is bruised, scratched and cut and his shoulder is broken. Dr. E. F. Woods, the attending surgeon, said this afternoon that the extent of his injuries could not yet be fully ascertained and he feared they are not so extensive as they appeared. The accident happened while the train crew was switching out cars. Three cars were "kicked off" onto a siding and he was on top of these to set the brakes. After one car had been "cut out" three more were sent after those on which Karn was riding and in crashing into them knocked the unfortunate man from his feet and he fell to the ground. He was picked up by his fellow workmen and brought here on a freight. Karn came here from Indiana a year or two ago and is a brother of Mrs. Karl A. Wetzler.

TWO RAIL WRECKS KILL SEVEN PEOPLE

Many Others Are Injured, Some May Die—New York and Connecticut Cut the Scenery.

Rochester, N. Y., June 24.—Five persons were killed and a score more or less seriously injured last night on the New York Central railroad a mile east of Pittsburg when a passenger train crashed into a freight train.

Another Wreck.
Hartford, Conn., June 24.—The fatalities reported today as a result of a railroad wreck here last night, caused by a passenger and work train colliding, are several. At least two other victims are beyond hope of recovery. Of the sixty-five Italian workmen on the train only a few escaped unhurt, the list of injured being about forty.

First Report.
Hartford, Conn., June 24.—Six workmen were killed and 40 injured when a passenger train on the Highland division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad crashed into the rear of a work train that was backing into the city from New Britain Sunday night at the Sigourney street crossing. Of the injured two probably will die.

The engineer of the work train claims that he had the right of way and his statements are borne out by others on this train. Engineer Wilson of the passenger train jumped in time to escape injury. The passengers, however, were badly shaken up and some were cut by flying glass. An express train passed on an adjoining track soon after the accident and side swiped the wreckage.

There was much danger because the wrecked cars had to be maintained in an upright position by stays while the rescuers were underneath battling to save the lives of those caught in the wreckage. During the excitement fire broke out. After quenching the flames firemen became rescuers and with axes and saws worked until the arrival of a squad of 50 railroad wreckers. Half a dozen priests administered the last rites to some of the sufferers. Soon after the wreck one man underneath several tons of debris was seen waving a red flag. Some one reached him a bottle of whisky and gave him a draught. He remarked: "The first drink in 12 years, and God knows I need it."

Rochester, N. Y., June 24.—Four persons were killed, three more are thought to be fatally hurt and eight were badly injured in a wreck Sunday night about a mile east of Pittsburg, on the Auburn branch of the New York Central railroad. The train was No. 230 going east. It met a freight head on.

GOV. JOHNSON FOR PRESIDENT.

Candidate of Minnesota Democrats, Says His Private Secretary.

Omaha, June 24.—"We hear a great deal of Mr. Bryan as the next Democratic nominee for president, but I want to tell you now that Minnesota will have a word to say about this; Minnesota will have a man before the next national convention, in the person of Gov. John J. Johnson. He is a candidate, has strength and will continue to develop more strength until the convention meets when he will go before it a formidable candidate." This statement was made here Sunday by Frank A. Day, private secretary of Gov. Johnson, who was en route to St. Paul from the Pacific coast. Mr. Day has been a Democratic leader of Minnesota for many years, having served in the legislature. He is an editor at Albert Lea, St. Paul, Minn., June 24.—Gov. John A. Johnson, when shown the interview attributed to his private secretary, said that Mr. Day must have been misunderstood. He said that he was not now a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, and that there was no likelihood of his becoming a candidate.

AN INCONCLUSIVE TEST

The conflict of authority between state and federal courts in relation to the rate law of 1907, in the state of Missouri, seems to have resulted in a preliminary compromise, the substance of which is that the state authorities and the railroad agree to give the new two-cent fare law a three months' trial under the sanction of the federal court.

It is doubtful whether this arrangement will prove satisfactory to either party. In the first place the time is too short because it represents only one-quarter of the year, and that a mid-summer quarter when Missouri people are very largely occupied in their regular pursuits on the farm and travel is correspondingly light. In the second place, it takes more time than this for the community to adjust itself to a new scale of charges. Nor can the railway authorities tell with any degree of conclusiveness whether in the long run the increase in traffic will more than outweigh the reduction in rates.

CIVIC PRIDE.

Civic pride does more for a city than all the booming and boosting in a half-hearted way, that can be done. Civic pride means booming and boosting the home city. It means the uplifting of the morals and general tone of the community, impressing visitors, would-be investors, that the city in question is a live, up-to-date, progressive city. Janesville has all the necessities for a boom. Huge railway yards are being built just south of the city; new factories are in contemplation, times are prosperous, there is plenty of work for everyone at good wages, and there is no reason why Janesville should not forge ahead rapidly. All that is lacking is the impetus to start and this will come. When the city is fully awake to its own capabilities Janesville will boom, civic pride will be awakened, old side-walks replaced by new, clean streets and clean yards, new school buildings take the place of unsightly and unsafe structures that now exist.

IMPROVEMENT.

Nothing marks an epoch of prosperity so much as improvement in public buildings in any community. Janesville needs many new streets, better sidewalks, but at present radical changes in the Jefferson school are most important. The council tonight will be asked to make a liberal appropriation for changes in the building and it is to be hoped they will grant the sum necessary to place the building in a sanitary and healthful condition.

AN INSPIRATION.

This is the era of invention. Edison says that the world has not yet begun to realize what electricity can do. There is some talk of placing arches with electric lights on several of Janesville's streets to be lighted during the summer. It is a plan worthy of consideration. Many visitors are here during the summer months and plenty of light on Janesville's opportunities might aid in deciding their minds it was a good city to move to.

Madison Democrat: It is told of Benjamin Harrison that he had such regard for the rights and feelings of others that he never would walk across the corner of a neighbor's grass plot. There are few Benjamin Harrisons in Madison.

Dodgeville Sun-Republic: It has been decreed by the manufacturers of those articles of feminine attire that next-year skirts shall be worn longer and so loose-fitting as to hide all suggestions of curves. Maybe so, but history goes to prove that it all depends.

It's an Easy Guess.

nevertheless he still performs useful work and his mere presence is an inspiration to the cause of good government.

The man who sits down and fishes for three hours straight without a bite and then finds he has been fishing where no fish could possibly come must feel about as encouraged as does the man who plants a garden and finds his neighbor's chickens have dug up the seeds.

Janesville has many parks, notable among them being the Court House one. Persons who enjoy the privileges accorded them by these breathing spots should not abuse the privileges. Should not become too noisy or otherwise annoy others who seek rest there.

The legislature is still trying to get through before the Fourth of July. Perhaps the members have heard of Janesville's big celebration and want to be here to see the famous and original Nonesuch Bros. circus.

The big Avon ditch is taking shape and the eyes of many farmers in other sections of the county are on the construction of this much-talked-of drainage system to watch the experiment. If successful it is safe to say that many other sections will be similarly treated.

Clinton is having its own troubles deciding the much-mooted school question. The town, dry for two years, is now on the wet map and before obtaining a license an applicant must almost pass a civil service examination.

This Sunday closing ordinance is showing many citizens what can be done to make Janesville a law-abiding community.

Revivalist Scoville may pound the floor in making his addresses, but he pounds facts home when he does, just as a carpenter pounds nails home with a hammer.

Summer is here, but no one should make a mistake and believe that winter will not arrive on time next fall.

The man who sits down and fishes for three hours straight without a bite and then finds he has been fishing where no fish could possibly come must feel about as encouraged as does the man who plants a garden and finds his neighbor's chickens have dug up the seeds.

Janesville has many parks, notable among them being the Court House one. Persons who enjoy the privileges accorded them by these breathing spots should not abuse the privileges. Should not become too noisy or otherwise annoy others who seek rest there.

The legislature is still trying to get through before the Fourth of July. Perhaps the members have heard of Janesville's big celebration and want to be here to see the famous and original Nonesuch Bros. circus.

The big Avon ditch is taking shape and the eyes of many farmers in other sections of the county are on the construction of this much-talked-of drainage system to watch the experiment. If successful it is safe to say that many other sections will be similarly treated.

Clinton is having its own troubles deciding the much-mooted school question. The town, dry for two years, is now on the wet map and before obtaining a license an applicant must almost pass a civil service examination.

Rock river may yet be the scene of much boating activity. Already there are some fifty odd craft on the river and more are to come.

This Sunday closing ordinance is showing many citizens what can be done to make Janesville a law-abiding community.

Revivalist Scoville may pound the floor in making his addresses, but he pounds facts home when he does, just as a carpenter pounds nails home with a hammer.

Summer is here, but no one should make a mistake and believe that winter will not arrive on time next fall.

The Fourth is coming, boys. Better save your firecrackers until that day and not shoot them off now.

It's an Easy Guess.

Chicago Tribune: A party of visiting Japanese inspected Chicago's rough-granite block pavements when in town not long ago, and freely expressed their opinion concerning them, but as they did so in Japanese the substance of their comments can be only vaguely surmised.

Rude, Rather Than Humorous. Appleton Post: Senator La Follette entertained a number of the legislators at his Maple Bluff farm near Madison a day or two since. It was something of a risk, for there are enough of "old seeds" in that body to foul a greater acreage than he owns.

Big Things Expected of Her. Oshkosh Northwestern: Milwaukee has won the next national convention of the Travelers' Protective association, which this year held its annual meeting at Norfolk, Va. Good for Milwaukee—but what is she doing about getting that national convention of the republican party next year?

Adams Express Co. Melon. Superior Telegram: Right away after express rates have been asked up to 30 per cent, more or less, on account of the rise in prices the Adams Expresses $24,000,000 as a 900 per cent dividend paid in bonds. Such a sign of poverty and hard times clearly justifies another boost in the rates.

Convulsed with Mirth. Evansville Review: The Minneapolis Journal pertinently asks, "Have you noticed how the word 'thousand' is misspelled on the new thousand-dollar certificate?" Yes, and every time we handle one of those certificates we look at the misspelled word and laugh almost fit to kill.

Asking Too Much. Fond du Lac Reporter: The New York World might just as reasonably expect an exact statement of how long "ultimately" is from the Cuban annexationists as from Bryan in relation to government ownership of railroads. Meanwhile, it might start the ball to rolling by stating what the ultimate results of yellow journalism will be.

Eagles Had Rip-Roaring Time. Shawano Advocate: The state convention of the Eagles was held at Oshkosh last week and on Wednesday they must have had a rip-roaring old time, according to Rev. A. M. Ayers, who wrote an article for the Milwaukee Sentinel on Friday last. Oshkosh always endeavors to give her visitors a good time and no doubt they wanted one, and had it.

Clemency Not Deserved.

Fond du Lac Bulletin: Fred C. Schultz, the convicted Milwaukee grafter, has been taken to the house of correction in Milwaukee to serve out a sentence of eighteen months. There has been a tendency on the part of Gov. Davidson to pardon these grafters a few days before their sentence expires in order to restore their full rights as citizens. It is earnestly hoped that the governor will manifest better judgment in the future. There is no crime so detestable as that of grafting and the man who accepts a bribe or takes the people's money unlawfully does so realizing only too well the chance he is taking.

Year's Best Baccalaureate.

Beloit News: Superintendent Cooley of the Chicago schools contends that with seventy-five cents worth of calico, and a sewing machine, any high school girl ought to be able to appear in a graduating dress made with her own hands, and be proud of the fact that she made it. Now that is real horse sense and should meet with approval all round, for that is the best sort of an education for any high school girl to acquire—an education which will be of use to her every day of her life, which will make her independent of the dressmaker, will make her an ideal helpmeet to her husband—for of course a girl like that will have a husband—and will give her useful and interesting occupation, and so tend to happiness and long life. Superintendent Cooley's talk is the best baccalaureate of the year, and Chicago is to be congratulated in having such a man to direct the education of its children.

Reflects on La Follette's Candidacy.

La Crosse Leader-Press: The Fond du Lac Reporter voices the suspicion that the candidacy of Senator La Follette for president is not being advanced with the expectation or hope of securing the presidential nomination for him. In the opinion of the Reporter the real object of the men who are most active in the movement is to give the senator a power in the convention, to place him in the position of winning the nomination which will place the successful man under such obligation to the Wisconsin senator as will give La Follette a decided power in the next administration, provided the republican party is successful at the election. In other words La Follette wants to go to the next republican convention with the Wisconsin delegation in his pocket to use as he may see fit.

Despite the gloomy outlook, the Reporter is convinced that the senator will get what he wants as it believes that he is in a position to dictate to the republican party in Wisconsin.

The Fond du Lac paper seems unnecessarily pessimistic. In the first place Senator La Follette has not become a candidate for president. A movement in his interest has been started, but he has thus far given it no recognition and it has got no further than gossip.

KIDNAPED BOY FOUND SLAIN IN A SWAMP

BODY OF WALTER LAMANA, OF NEW ORLEANS, RECOVERED.

Says Italians Who Stole Lad Became Frightened and Strangled Him

—Threats of Lynching Heard.

New Orleans, June 24.—Two miles in the interior of a big swamp near this city the headless body of Walter Lamana, an Italian child between seven and eight years old who was kidnapped and held for $5,000 ransom two weeks ago, was found by police and vigilantes just before daybreak Sunday. He had been strangled to death, according to the confession of one of several Italians held by the police.

The boy's neck is supposed to have been broken when he was strangled, causing the head to become separated from the body when decomposition set in. The head was found a short distance from the body.

Police Protect Prisoners.

Five Italians, two of them women, are under arrest charged with being accomplices to the murder, and extra details of police and deputies are maintaining order in the excited Italian quarter of the city. All day long small crowds have been dispersed promptly by the police, despite whose precautions a report has gotten out summoning a mass meeting at Elk place. Seventy armed deputies have been placed on guard at the Orleans parish prison, the strongest in the state, where three of the prisoners are held, and some apprehension has been felt for the safety of two other prisoners who were taken to an adjoining parish.

Seldom since the Mafia lynchings 16 years ago has New Orleans been so stirred with threats of violence and some of these threats are made by those who participated in the disorders at that time. The law and order element is much stronger than it has been heretofore, a large number of leading citizens having pledged themselves to prevent violence.

Italian Tells of the Crime.

The murdered boy was found near St. Rose, about 20 miles from New Orleans. A sweating process wrought a confession from one of the Italian suspects who was taken from his home in St. Rose about midnight Saturday night and carried into the woods by a combined force of officials and vigilantes who had the search in charge. This man, Ignazio Campicigiano, was kept in the woods an hour, when he confessed, charging four Italians with the murder. He said that about the time of a mass meeting in New Orleans more than a week ago, held for the purpose of prosecuting search for the body, these men, who were in a vacant house in St. Rose, became frightened and consulted about what to do with the child.

The boy was crying, begging to be taken home to his parents, said Campicigiano, and one of the quartette of the kidnapers grabbed the child and strangled him to death to stop his noise. Later two of the kidnapers, he said, came to him, carrying the body in a blanket, and after threatening him with death if he told, took the body into a swamp.

Leads Police to Body.

Campicigiano, after relating this story, led the police through two miles of swamp where the searchers sometimes waded in water nearly waist deep and at others crawled under tangles of briars. In the shallow pool at the end of this search the body was found in the blanket in a clump of cane.

Returning to the city, the police arrested Nicollina Gebbia, an Italian woman, who is alleged to have confessed that she knew of the kidnapping plot from the first from one of the four kidnapers whom she expected to marry. Campicigiano said that these four were Stefano Monfre, Tony Gendusa, Angelo Catantari, and an Italian named Incanterra. The police said they expected to capture these men within two or three days. The other prisoners directly implicated by the confession are Campicigiano's wife, Frank Gendusa and Leonardo Gebbia.

The dead boy's funeral was held Sunday afternoon. By six o'clock in the morning the entire Italian colony appeared to have learned the details of the murder and the police feared the crowds which would gather at the funeral if it was delayed.

SKY-ROCKET WENT THROUGH WINDOW

Display-Front of Bostwick Dry-goods Store Badly Damaged by Premature Celebration Saturday Night.

Premature and reckless celebrating of the nation's birthday is likely to prove very expensive for Robert Clark, a seventeen-year-old boy who set off a big sky-rocket on South Main street, shortly before midnight Saturday evening. The rocket veered from its horizontal course down the thoroughfare and ploughed through one of the quarter-inch plate glass windows in the J. M. Bostwick & Sons dry-goods store, opening up an aperture large enough to admit a piece of cordwood. Clark, at first, ran but thought better of it and came back to face the music. He agreed to settle for the damage as soon as he could earn the money. Fortunately, the projectile did not set fire to the fancy dress goods and other window trimmings. It will probably cost about $75 or $80 to replace the glass. Those who have looked for sylvan peace and quietude in the Courthouse park recently have been grievously disappointed as the small boy and his firecrackers has been industriously occupied. At the same time he has kept his weather eye open for the police and has promptly "ceased firing" whenever an officer approached.

TWO HUNDRED NOW WORK AT NEW YARDS

Construction Operations Are Just Getting Well Underway—Big Shovel Put in Commission.

With over a hundred men in the employ of the railway company, sixty working for Hayes brothers and a small gang preparing for the building of the new Rock river bridge, construction work at the new South Janesville freight yards of the Chicago & North-Western railway company is just getting well underway. Two work trains are carrying material out from the local yards and the switch-engine is assisting when not busied with making up trains. The bridge contractors are throwing out a wooden building bridge just below the present span. Hayes brothers, who have the grading contract, have three gangs at work: one is widening the rock cut near the old Millmore quarry and dumping the product into the valley just south; another is shoving down the hills near the north end of the yards and a third is just below with the new seventy-ton steam shovel. This machine was put in operation today. The railway company has fifty-five men putting in side-tracks and a score or more unloading material.

WILL CLOSE HIS HOTEL. W. J. Canary to Return to Ireland in July.

W. J. Canary of Footville announces to the public that on the last day of June his hotel is to close as a result of no license in the town.

Mr. Canary had planned to remodel his hotel this summer and have steam heat and electric lights. He is well known in this county and especially in Footville, as a man who did his share toward the growth of the village.

He intended to remodel his hotel so that it would be one of the best in the state for a town of this size but now this work is necessarily abandoned. He invites all his friends to call on him the last week of June and purchase some fine bottled wines and liquors at wholesale prices. He kept the very best of goods, of which he always had a large stock on hand.

Mr. Canary says he is to take a trip to Ireland and take one more look at the beautiful scenes about Youghal harbor, to which he bade adieu twenty-five years ago. His friends all wish him a joyous trip.

Ball Teams In Big and Little Leagues Need New Men.

DOVEY IS STILL SCOUTING.

"Stars Wanted" Is the Cry of the Hour—Manager Clark Griffith Has Tried For Five Years to Collect a Championship Team.

Despite the great demand for first class ball players all along the line it is impossible for some of the clubs to secure enough first class players. Not only is the cry from major league teams, but from the minors. One strong minor league has been scouring the east diligently for a first class infielder and has been willing to pay almost any sum within reason to secure such a one.

President Dovey of the Boston Nationals has been after a collection of players—outfielders, catchers and a spare infielder—and has found it mighty difficult to get what he is after. It has been said often that there are not enough high grade ball players in the country to man two major leagues, and this comes very near to being the truth. "Wanted—first class ball players" continues to be the cry of the day. When a club allows veteran material to go in the hope of securing something better it has a mighty tough contract on its hands. Pittsburgh parted with Second Baseman Claude Ritchey—had to do it, so it is said—but Abbatello comes a long way from being a Ritchey.

Clark Griffith of the New York Americans has now been engaged five seasons in collecting a championship team and still has his troubles. He came within one game of it at one time, but this season seems to lack considerable of being at the head of a pennant winning combination. On the other hand, Coniskey of the Chicago Americans achieves wonders with a team which is very much of the picked up description, yet it does wonders, and no team in the country puts up a more interesting game. The Robisons have expended

THE ROUNDUP COLUMN.

Sweetness of Character Versus Facial Beauty In the Ring.

George Wiltse, the angular twirler of the New York Nationals, has been getting his "bumps" this season. Wiltse had become considered one of McGraw's most reliable curve ballers and his release caused wide comment. Some people are unkind enough to say that whenever he goes into the box now Wiltse wilts.

Wiltse was originally so bashful and modest that McGraw had literally to PITCHER GEORGE WILTSE IN ACTION. drag or push him out on the diamond to pitch when large crowds were assembled. He has sharp, angular features, and sometimes the newspaper reporters refer to him as the "boy without a shape."

Wiltse has a claim to fame as unique as any of the other pitchers whose names have appeared as often in print as the sun has shone on this mundane sphere. "He is the best fielding pitcher in the game."

"Nature has not handed him a beautiful countenance, and he has a shape like the Eiffel tower. But his long arms and legs make him a wonder on the diamond, and the ball that sees him in pursuit just stops and gives up."

Because you can string a man is no sign that you can rope him in.

There is no use trying to find a lost opportunity.

Billy Elmer, formerly of Frisco and sparring partner of Jim Corbett and Kid McCoy, now conducts a fashionable gymnasium in New York, which is often referred to as "the millionaires' club." Bill gives boxing bouts for the edification of his members, bouts in FUTURE FIGHT CHAMPIONS IN THE MAKING. which members of his Consolidated Athletic club take part. At some of these bouts peculiar samples of physiognomy frequently appear. But as beauty is only skin deep perhaps these rising young pugilists make up in sweetness of character what they lack in facial appearance.

For the edification of those curious to know of what stuff the coming ring champions are made, a few faces and shapes seen in the ring of the Consolidated Athletic club are reproduced in this column.

Be careful that the man who calls you a duffard is not himself a "sharpener."

NO SYNDICATE BALL.

National League Clubs Are Independent of Each Other.

ABSURD ASSERTION DENIED.

Deal by Which John T. Brush Is Said to Have Attempted to Control Boston Nationals, Felt Through When Dovey Secured Club.

Somebody showed the writer recently a statement said to have been made in a western newspaper that the National league was practically owned by John T. Brush, Andrew Freedman, Gary Hermann and Barney Dreyfuss. A more absurd assertion has not been made about the financial end of the game for as long as I can remember. Neither of the four has a dollar in the Brooklyn club. Neither of the four has a dollar in the Chicago club. Neither of the four has a dollar in the Boston club. John T. Brush would have bought the Boston club if the Dovey syndicate hadn't got in ahead of him.

It has been said positively by a gentleman whose word is not to be doubted and who is as close to Andrew Freedman as a man can well be, that he hasn't a penny in baseball in the world except one share of stock in the New York club, which he retains largely out of sentiment.

When John T. Brush bought the New York club from Freedman twenty-one shares were retained by the latter, who thought it was worth holding, and as Mr. Brush was at that time not just in the position to take it off Mr. Freedman's hands he was more than glad that the former owner was willing to continue with him rather than sell to an outsider. Since then Mr. Freedman has sold twenty of the twenty-one shares. It is said, and there is little question but that Mr. Brush has secured them, although it is possible that he did not negotiate for them in person.

The effort to prove that the National league is operated by a syndicate is not well taken. In fact, there is nothing behind it.

A well known authority says: "I happen to know some owners in the National league who wish that at times it might have been operated by a syndicate. It would have saved them many an hour of worry and anxiety when the rival owners were fighting tooth and nail over details of the game. Still everybody is alive at the present time, and there isn't the slightest indication that the National league will not be going on at the old stand for a long time to come."

JOHN A. DONOHUE, CHICAGO AMERICAN.

"Tiggs" Donohue was one of the chief individual factors in the capture of the world's championship fall of 1906. His fielding being phenomenal and game saving and his batting most timely. Donohue was born on July 18, 1872, at Springfield, O. He played his first game of real baseball at Marietta, O., in 1890, starting as a catcher. In 1900 he joined the Pittsburgh Nationals. He finished that season with 1901. At the close of 1902 he was purchased for the White Sox and joined them in 1904. He throws and bats left handed.

Manager Frank Chance of the Chicago National champions is of the opinion that this year's results of both major leagues will be a duplicate of last year's races. He stated the other day that the little army of ball players under his directing hand this season will repeat in history the feat that was accomplished last fall, when they ascended to the height of fame in National league circles. Next he claimed that a second brush between the West Siders and South Siders of the Windy City, which is all that can be seen on the 1907 baseball horizon in the mid-western metropolis, would terminate in a victory for the Cubs. Said he tersely, "If it comes down to the Cubs and Sox again next fall, and we think it will—well, there'll be another story to tell, all right."

Chance Believes In Veterans.

Frank Chance is a great believer in experienced men in important positions. "That's why I am going to retain Mike Killee," said the Chicago leader the other day. "I prefer Mike to a youngster who might be a shade faster, but would not be there with the huddle at the critical moments."

ALBERT CALLS ON CLEMENCEAU.

Leader of French Uprising Is Overcome With Contrition.

Paris, June 24.—The most interesting event Sunday in connection with the wine-growers revolt was the visit of Marcelin Albert, the leader of the disturbing element in the south of France, to Premier Clemenceau. The man for whom the police and troops vainly have been scouring the country for a fortnight, appeared without warning at the ministry of the interior. He was admitted to the presence of Clemenceau, with whom he had a 15 minute talk.

A semi-official account of the interview says that the premier used extremely strong language, virtually reproaching his visitor with the responsibility of all that has happened in the south. M. Albert is represented as having been overcome with contrition, bursting into tears and asking the premier how he could make atonement, to which M. Clemenceau replied: "Give yourself up to the law and use your influence with your countrymen to return to lawful ways."

M. Albert left for the south at nine o'clock. Just before he left it was officially stated that he had promised M. Clemenceau to do his utmost to induce his countrymen to return to work and to cease their disturbances.

WANTS TRAVEL MADE SAFER.

Union of Railway Trackmen Seeks Aid of the President.

Kansas City, Mo., June 14.—President Roosevelt and the governors of several states have been asked to aid the National Union of Railway Trackmen in a campaign for greater safety in railway travel. J. I. Sheppard, of Fort Scott, Kan., secretary of the organization, has sent out a letter addressed to the president and several governors in which he says:

"If we can obtain the cooperation of all who should be interested we will have a safe condition for railway travel in our country as prevail in Europe. We certainly should have either government or state inspection of railway tracks. Some one should be held responsible to the people for keeping the tracks in proper repair and properly patrolled."

"It is a curious condition of affairs, but it is true. We have state inspection of factories and mines, of beer, barbers, pharmacists and dentists; there is state control over the product of the busy bee, and the farmer who raises wheat must pay a state inspection fee before he can market his grain. But there is no law that is observed that provides for the inspection of railroad tracks."

A Scottish laird took his new plowman to task for the wavering furrows which were the result of his work. "Your drills are not nearly as straight as those Angus made," he said, severely. "Ye see, when the drills is crookit the sun gets in on a sides, an' 'tis then ye get early tattles."

OPERATORS READY FOR HARD CONTEST.

PRESIDENT SMALL SAYS THEY HAVE THE BEST OF IT SO FAR.

TELEGRAMS SENT BY MAIL.

Serious Congestion of Business Expected in a Few Days—Strikers Will Have Plenty of Money.

San Francisco, June 24.—Every thing was quiet in the telegraphers' strike Sunday. Samuel J. Small, president of the Commercial Telegraphers' union, said:

"The real fight will begin Monday, when the early week rush of business is on. The out of town managers and chief operators who can be induced to take the places of the strikers will have arrived in the city by Monday or Tuesday, but should they go to work, the companies, with the additional force, will be in a worse predicament than they were Friday and Saturday, days on which telegraph business is light."

"Our reports from various points show that the tie-up is complete. Los Angeles was 1,500 messages behind at midnight Saturday; from Portland comes the report that there is a blockade of business on the northern route."

Telegrams Start by Mail.

"By Wednesday of this week the congestion of telegraph business between the Pacific and Atlantic coasts will be as bad as during the earthquake and fire period. Already reports are coming to us that telegrams are being mailed in bundles to eastern points. Upon receipt at Denver, Los Angeles or Portland the messages are put on the wires if there is room for them. If not, they are repeated to the next repeating point nearest their destination."

"We estimate that everyone can take care of himself financially until July 1. After that we will pay weekly benefits. Before leaving the east I arranged with General Secretary, Treasurer Russell to send me a certified check for $1,000 each week. The local treasury is strong, therefore our boys and girls are not worrying about the financial end of the trouble."

"We have the best of the bargain so far. There were two desertions from the Western union Sunday at West Oakland and others will follow."

Officials Say It Won't Last.

L. W. Storer, general superintendent of the Postal Telegraph company, said:

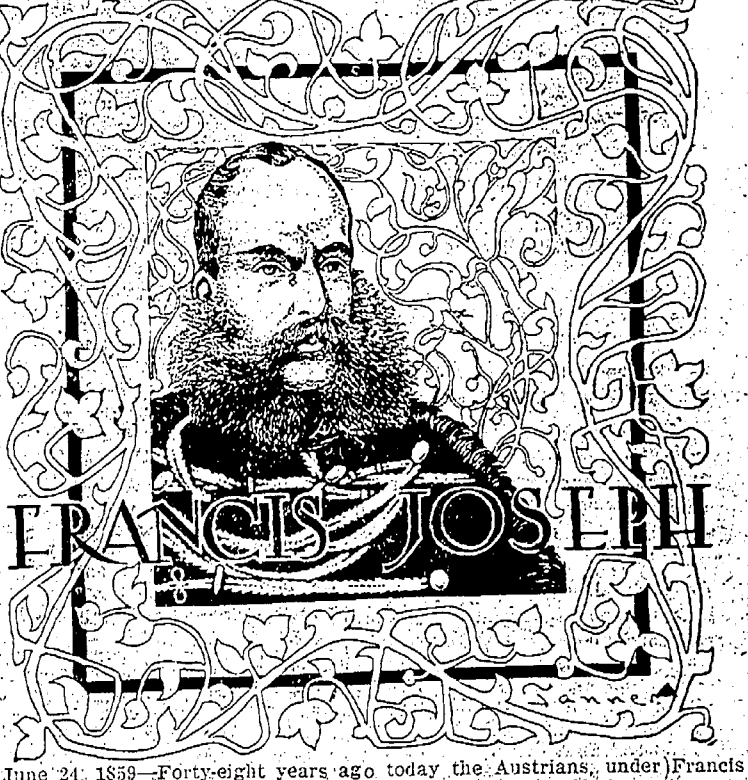

"The Postal Telegraph company has made no effort yet to employ non-union telegraphers, and its officials believe that the strike of the union operators will cure itself. Things will probably remain chaotic for a few days to come."

A. H. May, district superintendent of the Western Union, said:

"We have about one-third of our entire force of operators at work and are able to handle the business; we are receiving with comparative expedition. The Western Union company does not intend to treat with the telegraphers' union in this matter. Our shop is an open one."

Jeff Davis for President.

Adlai E. Stevenson, of Illinois, formerly vice president of the United States, is fond of telling of an odd experience he had shortly after the civil war. At that time David Davis was much talked of as the man to run against Gen. Grant for the presidency. A conference was held in Mr. Stevenson's Bloomington residence, many leading Illinois and other Democrats being present. A good deal was said about the possible candidacy of Mr. Davis, but no one happened to mention his first name. After the conference broke up Mr. Stevenson drew an old farmer friend into a corner and asked his opinion. The farmer was from the extreme southern end of Illinois. He said: "Well, Adlai, you know I've followed your lead in politics for a good while, and I'm going to do it now. But, honest, Adlai, don't you think it's a little nite early to nominate Jeff Davis?" — Chicago Chronicle.

S.S.S. NATURE'S TONIC

Every one should take a tonic in the Spring; their systems require it. The blood has become thick and sluggish with the accumulations left in the system from the inactive, indoor life and from the heavy, rich foods of the winter season. The blood, being in this unnatural and disordered condition, is unable to furnish the body with the increased amount of nourishment necessary for the more energetic life of Spring and Summer, and the system suffers from debility, weakness, nervousness, indigestion, loss of appetite, and many other unpleasant symptoms of a disordered blood circulation. When the system is in this run-down and disordered condition it is not safe to take unknown concoctions, sarsaparillas, compounds, etc., because they usually contain potash or some other equally strong and harmful mineral ingredient, which acts unfavorably and often dangerously on the depleted, weakened system at a time when it needs gentle and natural stimulation to throw off the impurities and recuperate its lost energy. S.S.S. is appropriately called Nature's Tonic. It is made entirely of roots, herbs and barks from the great storehouse of forest and field, selected for their purifying and health-restoring qualities, and as it does not contain the slightest trace of mineral in any form it is perfectly safe for young or old. S.S.S. acts directly on the blood, ridding it of all impurities and poisons, and restoring the lost properties of rich, nutritive strength so that it is able to supply the system with the healthful, invigorating energy needed to pass the trying season of the year. Its action is the most pleasant, prompt and satisfactory of all tonics, and those who feel the need of such a medicine will do well to commence the use of S.S.S. at once. S.S.S. restores lost energy, relieves the tired, worn-out feeling, helps the appetite, aids digestion, and adds tone and vigor to the system. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

Emperor William Sails His Yacht After Divine Service.

Kiel, Germany, June 24.—Emperor William conducted divine service on the imperial yacht Hohenzollern at nine o'clock Sunday morning. Afterwards he sailed the Meteor again to victory over the Hamburg, which gave up the race. In the half gale the Meteor covered the 33-knot course in three hours, 22 minutes, 53 seconds.

The American built yacht, Navahoe, in her class beat the Comet 22 minutes and 10 seconds.

Two Brothers Drown at St. Louis.

St. Louis, June 24.—In an effort to save his brother's life, Fred Adler, 20 years old, was drawn into the swift current of the Mississippi river, opposite the foot of President street, Sunday morning, by Augustus Adler, aged 23, and both were drowned. Both were athletes and good swimmers and their cries for help were laughed at by a companion in a skiff, who thought the shouts were in fun.

Saengerfest Is Closed.

CHAPTER V.

That same evening the grand duke's valet knocked on the door leading into the princess's apartments, and when the door opened he gravely announced that his serene highness desired to speak to the princess Hildegard. It was a command. For some reason, known best to herself, the princess chose to obey it.

"Say that I shall be there presently," she said, dismissing the valet.

As she entered her uncle's study—so called because of its dust-laden bookshelves, though the duke sometimes disturbed their contents to steady the leg of an unbalanced chair or table—he laid down his pipe and dismissed his small company of card players.

"I did not expect to see you so soon," he began. "A woman's curiosity sometimes has its value. It takes little to arouse it, but a great deal to allay it."

"You have not summoned me to make smart speeches, simply because I have been educated up to them?"—truculently.

"No. I have not summoned you to talk smart, a word much in evidence in Barscheit since your return from England. For once I am going to use a woman's prerogative. I have changed my mind."

The princess Hildegard trembled with delight. She could put but one meaning to his words.

"The marriage will not take place next month."

"Uncle!"—rapturously.

"Wait a moment,"—grimly. "It shall take place next week."

"I warn you not to force me to the altar," cried the girl, trembling with time with a cold fury.

"My child, you are too young in spirit and too old in mind to be allowed a gateless pasture. In harness you will do very well!" He took up his pipe and primed it. He was rather embarrassed to look the girl in the eye.

"You shall wed Doppelkinn next week."

"You will find it rather embarrassing to drag me to the altar,"—evenly.

"You will not," he replied, "create a scandal of such magnitude. You are untamable, but you are proud."

The girl remained silent. In her heart she knew that he had spoken truly. She could never make a scene in the cathedral. But she was determined never to enter it. She wondered if she should produce the bogus certificate.

She decided to wait and see if there were no other loopholes of escape. Old Rotnasig? Not if she died!

When these two talked without apparent heat it was with unaltered fixedness of purpose. They were of a common race. The duke was determined that she should wed Doppelkinn; she was equally determined that she should not. The gentleman with the algebric bump may figure this out to suit himself.

"Have you no pity?"

"My reason overshadows it. You do not suppose that I take any especial pleasure in forcing you? But you leave me no other method."

"I am a young girl, and he is an old man."

"That is immaterial. Besides, the fact has gone abroad. It is now irrevocable."

"I promise to go out and ask the first man I see to marry me!" she declared.

"Pray heaven, it may be Doppelkinn!" said the duke drolly.

"Oh, do not doubt that I have the courage to do a reckless thing, I would."

In the eyes and the heart, blurring everything. The duke got up and went over to his desk, rummaging among the papers. He returned to the girl with a letter.

"Read that, and learn the treachery of the man you trusted."

The letter was written by Steinbock. In it he disclosed all. It was a venomous, insulting letter. The girl crushed it in her hand.

"Is he dead?" she asked, all the bitterness in her heart surging to her lips.

"To, Barscheit,"—briefly. "Now, what shall I do with this?"—tapping the bogus certificate.

"Give it to me," said the girl wearily. She ripped it into halves, into quarters, into infinitesimal squares, and tossed them into the waste-basket. "I am the unhappiest girl in the world."

"I am sorry," replied the grand duke.

"It isn't as if I had forced Doppelkinn on you without first letting you have your choice. You have rejected the prince of a dozen wealthy countries. We are not at the common people; we can not marry where we will. I shall announce that the marriage will take place next week."

"Do not send my friend away," she pleaded, apparently, tremed.

"I will promise to give the matter thought,"—Good night.

She turned away without a word and left him. When he roared at her she knew by experience that he was harmless; but this quiet determination meant the exclusion of any further argument. There was no escape unless she ran away.

She went on her pillow that night, not so much at the thought of wedding Doppelkinn as at the fact that Prince Charming had evidently missed the last train and was never coming to wake her up, or if he did come, it would be when it was too late. How many times had she conjured him up, as she rode in the fresh fairness of the mornings! How many he was and how his voice thrilled her!

Her horse was suddenly to run away, he was to rescue her, and then demand her hand in marriage as a fitting reward. Sometimes he had black hair and eyes, but more often he was big and tall, with yellow hair and the bluest eyes in all the world.

TONS OF DIAMONDS.

An Estimate on the Output of the Mines of the World.

Like all precious metals and stones, the unit of weight usually employed in regard to diamonds is the carat, of which 151 1/2 go to make up a single ounce. To think of sacks of diamonds by the ton staggers the imagination; indeed, the average annual output of the Kimberley mines is not more than half a ton all told.

Statistics have been published recently at Cape Town giving the output for several years past of the Kimberley mines and the river diggings. These yielded in the three years 1903-05 nearly 7,250,000 carats, say a ton and a half. The monetary value of these diamonds was $10,450,000.

Since the first diamond was discovered by the banks of the Vaal in 1867, down to the end of 1906 it is estimated that the total weight of diamonds extracted from the Griqualand mines is over 13 1/2 tons, of a market value of fully $5,000,000.

If statistics of this sort can be trusted—and in the case of the South African yield they closely approximate to the facts—only 17 tons of diamonds had been mined all over the world to the end of 1901. With the same relative output since that year from Brazil and India the world's output of diamonds is now more than 20 tons.

The figure seems small, considering the ages diamonds have been worked in India and elsewhere in the east, and must be largely guesswork with respect to the output in antiquity. It is, however, certain that more diamonds have been placed on the market in the last 40 than in the previous thousand years.—Pall Mall Gazette.

DARROW WILL OPEN CASE FOR HAYWOOD

HE WILL SET FORTH THE GOOD CHARACTER OF PRISONER.

VICTIM OF A CONSPIRACY

Theory of Defense Is That Mine Owners' Association Plotted to Wreck Western Federation of Miners.

Boise, Idaho, June 24.—William D. Haywood, having already pleaded not guilty to the charge of murder and having heard the evidence the state of Idaho has placed before the jury in support of its charge, will formally assert his entire innocence Monday, and outline the evidence he proposes to produce in order that the presumption of innocence still resting in the mind of the jury may become a fixed judgment.

Clarence Darrow, as attorney for Haywood, will say that his client is not only not guilty of conspiracy to assassinate Frank Steunenberg, a former governor of Idaho, but that Haywood is in fact the victim of a conspiracy to disrupt the Western Federation of miners and, under the guise of legal procedure, condemn to death the chief officers of the federation of which Haywood is the secretary and one of his co-defendants under the indictment is the president.

Mr. Darrow's address to the jury, presenting the outline of the evidence he proposes to introduce and the position he hopes to be able to prove, probably will take up most of the day. Court meets at ten o'clock and takes recess at noon. Mr. Darrow says that he expects his speech will occupy at least three hours, and possibly more.

What Darrow Will Assert.

It will be an exhaustive presentation. He will assert that Haywood by sheer force of character rose from the humble position of a miner working for a day's wages to become the secretary and treasurer of a labor organization with upward of 50,000 members. He will show that Haywood was elected to office by the members of the Western Federation of Miners for successive terms because of his ability and his honesty. He will point out that the personal character of the man has not been assailed, but that a conspiracy has been charged.

Mr. Darrow will not attempt to deny that many foul crimes have been committed. He will not deny that Steunenberg was assassinated, but he will maintain that his client had nothing to do with this or any other murders and that the state has not connected Haywood with any conspiracy. He will charge a conspiracy on the part of the mine owners' association, with a large membership and unlimited money behind it, who, finding the Western Federation of Miners inimical to the mine owners, plotted to wreck the Western Federation and by conspiracy with detectives and others create such feeling against the federation that governors of states and even the federal government would be willing to help the mine owners to drive the members of the federation from the land.

Attack on Orchard Story.

It will be asserted that the Orchard story is true only in that the crimes were committed. In his speech to the court on Saturday Mr. Darrow intimated that there was not even proof, other than the statement of Orchard, that Orchard committed the crimes he has enumerated.

It will be asserted that the conspiracy as between Haywood, Moyer, Pettibone, Orchard and Adams was a fabrication of Orchard's, who, in order to save his life, brought the others into it, and that the price of the confession was the pardon of the actual murder of Steunenberg. The motive of this murder, it will be asserted, is to be found in Orchard's desperate poverty and the fact that he saw his old partners in the Hercules mine rich and prosperous while he, a hunted criminal, robbed, killed and attempted burglary in order to replenish his pocket. It will be charged that Orchard borrowed money from August Paulson in Wallace in order that he might have enough money to go to Caldwell, kill Steunenberg and get away.

May Have Longer Sessions.

The taking of the testimony for the defense may begin on Monday, but it is doubtful if, after Mr. Darrow has finished his address, the court will take up this phase of the case. Counsel for the defense are of the opinion that the first witness will be called on Tuesday morning. Judge Wood, however, is anxious to push the case to completion, and it may be that from now on he will extend the hours.

The defense expects to take not more than ten days with the introduction of evidence, but counsel for the state will go into close examination of all the witnesses brought to upset the Orchard story, and for this reason it is thought that the case for the defense may take up a longer time than was occupied by the state. The rebuttal testimony will take probably a week. The speeches and verdict may take the greater part of another, so that it is not thought that the conclusion will be reached before the end of July.

NEW SENATOR FROM MONTANA.

Career of J. M. Dixon, Elected to Succeed W. A. Clark.

Helena, Mont.—Joseph M. Dixon of Missoula, who has been elected United States senator to succeed W. A. Clark, will undoubtedly be the youngest member of the senate when he is sworn in next March. He is only 39 years old, having been born July 31, 1867. His political career has been a procession. He came to Montana in 1892 from "Uncle Joe" Cannon original-stamping grounds in North Carolina, and in 1894 was elected prosecuting attorney of Missoula county. He went to the state legislature in 1900, was elected to the fifty-eighth congress in 1902, and reelected by an increased majority in 1904. He has a habit of never losing anything he goes after. He is the most popular man in public life in Montana, which may be considered remarkable when it is known that he never spent a dollar above the strictest legitimate expenses in any of his campaigns. It cost the man he is succeeding more than a million to get his seat. Mr. Dixon is of Quaker parentage, and largely owes his conspicuous success in life to his amiable, unassuming manners, sterling honesty and knack of seeing and seizing opportunities. He is sympathetic with administration policies. He has a wife and four daughters.

CAMEL AS COLLEGE MASCOT.

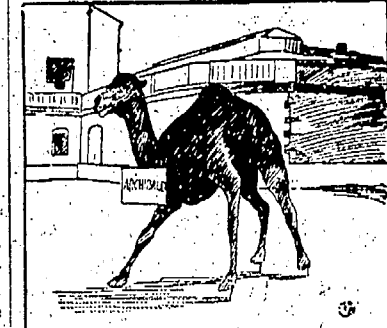

Stuffed Animal Prized by Students of Brown University.

Boston.—Archibald, the spike-hoofed camel, is the mascot of Brown University.

He is not a common camel, since he is stuffed with hay and history. Some 80 years ago he was brought from Africa, but died en route. He was placed in the natural history rooms at Providence, but was at peace there only 30 years when something happened. Suddenly he loomed up one morning on the college campus, standing stiff and straight.

Since then every year at midnight on February 21, he has been carried from his stall to be the central figure around which hundreds of the students have danced in the glare of a huge bonfire a sort of performance in honor of George Washington.

Archibald is the mascot at all the college meets and games. That is why Brown was to the good with Dartmouth in football last fall, for he was at the game in full style. Though old and decrepit and frayed and worn, with little stability and less hair, yet old Archibald always stands proudly in the foremost rank of the crowd and leads the cheering.

Owens Much Scotch Land.

Sir Hugh Shaw-Stuart, of Ardgowan, who is one of the greatest territorial magnates of the west of Scotland, and about the richest of them, sat for East Pembrokeshire as a Tory from 1886 until the last general election. He has just been requested to become the Tory candidate for the seat at the next general election, but has declined, because he is a staunch free trader and entirely disapproves the protectionist leanings of the opposition leaders. Sir Hugh's father, the late Sir Michael Shaw-Stuart, sat as a Tory for Renfrewshire in three parliaments, and he is said to have twice refused a peerage. Sir Hugh, through his mother, is a nephew of the late duke of Westminster, and he is married to a sister of Lord Bath.

Bird Notes Set to Music.

Henry Oldys, assistant biologist in the department of agriculture, has 1,000 samples of bird music written in popular form so that it is possible for the human voice exactly to imitate the songsters of the field and forest. He has recorded, says the Washington Herald, the actual tones, setting them in the proper musical key, and their reproduction is easy for anybody who can read musical symbols. Mr. Oldys has been gathering bird language for 13 years and during most of that time has been devoting his expert knowledge of the subject to official reports which find their way in the government archives.

NEW GUINEA HOUSES

HOMES OF HALF-CIVILIZED NATIVES BUILT IN TREES.

Placed Higher in Earlier Days to Prevent Surprise by Enemy—Life in Far-Off Country Ideal for Savages.

Boston.—Of all the habitations of man none is more strange to the eyes of a civilized person than the houses in New Guinea, the largest island in the world.

Lying north of the continent of Australia, and south of the Philippines, New Guinea is peopled by semi-savage tribes, to whom the ways of white men are as yet so new that many of their ancient customs survive.

Among these is the building of houses in trees, or on pillars over the land or the water. In some parts of the island are whole villages built half a mile from shore. Everywhere in the interior of the island the houses are built several feet above the ground, and in certain communities the tree house, a survival of the days when the tribes were usually at war with one another, may still be seen.

The primary purpose of the tree house is to protect its owner against surprise from an enemy. In war time he takes his family, arms and provisions, climbs to his house and draws the ladder up after him.

But why cannot his enemy cut down the tree, may be asked. Such a thing would be simple if the tree cutter could wear a suit of armor and have an ax that would resist the dulling effects of wood as hard as lignum vitae. The tribes of New Guinea have no means of protecting themselves against the poisoned arrows of an enemy except their shields, and a shield would be rather awkward to manage when cutting down a tree having a family at the top dropping down stones, hot water and poisoned darts and arrows. Besides, the savages had only stone axes in the days when the tree houses were used as fortresses.

In these days the tree houses of New Guinea serve the same purpose as all the other elevated dwellings on the island—they keep their occupants safe above the fever-soaked ground, with its deadly night mists, and they also keep off deadly beasts. Life in New Guinea, for a savage, is ideal, since it is not necessary to work for a living, and the wearing of clothes is not considered necessary.

The forest supplies food in abundance, in the way of bananas, yams and sago, while hogs flourish in the wild growth, and form the staple meat diet of the people.

Cocoanuts, which grow abundantly all over the island, are much used for food, and the milk of the young nut is a common drink. The meat of the nuts, when dried, is a staple article of barter with traders.

In the homes of New Guinea house-keeping is reduced to its simplest elements. The cooking utensils are earthen pots. The stove is a little clay platform in the middle of the house floor, surrounded by a fender of saplings, woven and smeared with clay.

For beds hammocks made of vegetable fiber are generally used, and are best suited to the climate. Bedding is not necessary.

Since nobody wears clothing, the housewife need neither sew, darn nor mend. As a cook her accomplishments need not extend beyond the preparation of sago porridge and the roasting of a pig.

The houses are made of palm leaves woven into a thatch for the roof, and sides of bamboo. The floors are split bamboo, laid flat side upward.

Typical Zenana.

In Bengal is the typical zenana. The dwelling consists of two houses built each round its own court. The one of the street is for men. In the rear building, which contains the zenana, the first floor is for cowsheds, storage and cookrooms; above are cells ten to 12 feet square, each having a door and a small grated window opening upon piazzas which, in one, two or three tiers surround the inner court.

Only Two in Office.

A man in a certain township was elected constable. The members of the family were much elated and could scarcely contain themselves with their newly acquired civic honors. At last one of the smaller children said to the wife: "Ma, are we all constables?" The mother replied, "Gwan, child, nobody's constable but me and your pa."—Atchison Globe

RELIC OF SCOTTISH QUEEN.

Englishman Owns Handbag Once Property of Unfortunate Mary.

In the possession of Dr. A. F. Germain of Brighton, England, is a beautiful embroidered little handbag. It is an interesting relic of a bygone time, and figured in a famous scene. When the unfortunate Mary, queen of Scots, was led to execution this little satchel of violet velvet formed part of the costume she wore. It contained a rare and costly handkerchief. As she passed to the block, Mary took the dainty handkerchief out and handed the bag to her favorite attendant, Lady Jane Douglas. She cherished it ever after as a memento of her lamented queen. The little bag is made more interesting and valuable by the fact that Queen Mary herself embroidered and made it. The needlework is very beautiful and rare, being peculiar to the time of the beautiful young queen. Until recently the bag has been in the possession of the Douglas family in Scotland, being kept at Castle Dumfries among the family heirlooms. A late Lady Douglas presented it to a favorite brother-in-law, Sir William Watkins Wynn, and this gentleman, realizing the appreciation of Dr. A. F. Germain for this interesting relic of the unfortunate Queen Mary, gave it to him, and it is still in his possession. The bag is prized very highly by Dr. Germain, and he keeps it in a glass case, with a descriptive historical note attached to it.

DO BEST WORK AT NIGHT.

Quiet Hours the Proper Time for Intellectual Labor.

Prof. Victor Ballochau of the Paris Academy of Medicine declares that the best intellectual work can be accomplished between midnight and dawn. "The true secret of long continued, valuable brain work," he says, "is to cut the night in two. The scholar, the inventor, the financier, the literary creator should be asleep every night at ten o'clock, to wake again at, say two, in the morning. Three hours' work from two to five, in the absolute tranquillity of the silent hours, should mean the revealing of new powers, new possibilities, a wealth of ideas undreamed of under the prevailing system. From eight to eight or 8:30 sleep again. Take up again the day's work; the brain will still be saturated with the mental fruits of the night vigil; there will be no effort in putting into practice or carrying further what was planned or begun those few hours before. The habit may be hard to acquire, but mechanical means of waking at first will induce the predisposition."

By Proxy.

He was a man with a large round personality, and he stood at the head of a large line of impatient men, women and children who were waiting for a chance to pay their fares and get past the turnstile of the elevated railway at Madison and Wabash, says the Chicago Tribune.

He was searching leisurely in his pockets for the necessary nickel, and it wasn't in any of them. Finally he produced a five-dollar bill, which he slowly and methodically unfolded and passed over to the monopolist inside the ticket office. "Dom his bastely hide!" fervently exclaimed a man with a strong Tipperary accent, half way down the line. "O, you mustn't talk that way!" said a sweet feminine voice directly behind him; "but thank you very much!"

Tobacco Smoke Poisonous.

It is often said that tobacco smoke is a powerful germicide. The composition of tobacco smoke is complex, the principal constituents being oils of a tarry nature. Nicotine itself is a strong germicide, but the quantity of this poison in tobacco smoke is minute. The oil matter which accumulates in a tobacco pipe is highly poisonous, but does not contain any appreciable quantity of nicotine, the chief constituent of residue being a very poisonous oil known as pyridine. Tobacco smoke contains a decided quantity of carbon monoxide, which is a preservative and which must possess germicidal properties. Recently it has been observed that one of the principal constituents accounting for the germicidal properties of tobacco smoke is the powerful antiseptic formaldehyde.

At the Literary Club.

"How did everything come off at the literary last night?" "Well, the barbecued beef was uptop, an' the Brunswick stew couldn't be beat, while the corn ficker had enough beads on it to make a pearl necklace, look stek." "But—was there no literary discussion?" "Lemme see, now—I believe the president did hit the vice president 'side the head with a copy of Bunyan's 'Pilgrim's Progress.'—Atlanta Constitution

Loaded.

The old man looked reflectively at the brass tip of his wooden leg. "Then," he said, "the surgeons took me up and laid me carefully in the ammunition wagon, and—'Hold on, captain,' said a listener. 'You don't mean the ammunition wagon. You mean the ambulance wagon.' But the captain shook his head. 'No,' he insisted, 'I was so full of bullets that they decided I belonged to the ammunition wagon.'"

Putting It Mildly.

"You resent that critic's opinions?" "Not at all," answered Mr. Storming Barnes. "What I resent is his egotistic presumption in considering his opinions so sufficient importance to warrant their public expression."
